EXPEDITION MICRONESIA WITH MARSHALL ISLANDS AND PALAU

This cruise offers picture-perfect island experiences and a rare glimpse into isolated life across the remote Western Pacific, sailing to territories untouched by tourism. Highlights include encounters with rare animals, ancient rituals, and lush jungles in tropical realms far from modernity, alongside a fresh perspective on the history and future of these islands. The Marshall Islands captivate with more atolls than people, while two days in Palau—a Micronesian dream destination—deliver spectacular scenery, complemented by explorations of Tuvalu, Kiribati's Gilbert Islands, and the Caroline Islands, revealing pristine beauty and enigmatic cultures at every turn.

(arrival on 11.05 at 6.00 hrs, departure on 13.05 at 6.00 hrs)

The "Floating Gardens" of Palau are like a dream world. Many tiny islands emerge from the blue-green ocean like mushrooms covered in plant life. Bizarre limestone cliffs are overgrown with thick vegetation and a colourful diversity of species lives in shimmering coral. The future of many Pacific islands is uncertain - just a few metres above sea level, they are in danger as sea levels rise. This makes the unforgettable experiences all the more valuable.
